and Western Rullroad, when John M. Patterson & Sohn brought in a good $9-foot well on the Kessler farm. There were at least a dozen wells druled around the Ressler, but only two of them are making enough oil to call them producers. The field as a whole has proven a fullure.

Except in the vicinity of Brownsdale, operations in Butler county are practically at a standatuli. Zelienople and Harmony are dead of the world so tar as new work is concerned, and the Garvin pool south of Evans City has assumed a graveyard appearance. Yorthwest of Allegheny City several gas empanies have kept a few strings of tools funning, and have been bringing in gassers whose pressure ranged from 100 to 200 pounds. Nothing hie in that line, however, or any oil wells has been developed. pounds. Nothing hie in that line, however, or any oil wells has been developed.

In what is known as the Pinhook gas field, around Militown, three miles east of Verona, oil has been found in the 100-foot and, but as the parties drilling the wells were after mas they cased off the oil and went on down. In only one or two wells, however, was the showing sufficient to suppose that it inhight be developed into a paying producer. Much of the territory has never been thorsome three-score years ago, after two sisters by the name of Wells.

It is more than a year ago since some venturesome wildcatters got a showing of oil in what is the present sisters ville field. Lodwig & Money struck the old Folecat well, which was probably the first in the region to show any encouraging amount of oil.

Then William Johnson, and Charles Duel and J. C. Tennant went to work and after a great dead of labor demonstrated to the oil producing public that the field was work in the least spring a rush was made for the new Eldorndo. The natives of the slumbering old village were amuzed when one morning they swoke to see derines and tanks being built on every lot and tarm; and pipe lines being laid across rish fertile meadows. From a population 300 or 400 it jumped to over 1,500 in a court of weeks and from a production of 13,000 barrels. The consideration was $73,000.

The Situation Warrants Better Prices.

The situation at present is builtied. With the exception of Doddridge county, W. Va., no new fields are in sight. McDonald is on the decline and Sistersville has reached almost the keystone. The upper county and Butler fields are practically dead. Very listing the production of 13,000 barrels. The situation was $73,000.

The situation at present is builtied. With the exception of Doddridge county, W. Va., no new fields are in sight. McDonald is on the decline and Sistersville has reached almost the keystone. The upper county and Butler fields are practically dead. Very district, except what is absolutely necessary to protect the lease. There is a decline of nearly one-half in completed wells. The slitpments are increasing, while the stocks of legitimate Pennsylvania producers to believe that better prices.

Nearly 200 wells have been drilled in the Nearty 200 wells have been drilled in the field, but at the present time it is generally believed that the producing send has been pretty well defined, with the exception of a narrow streak toward the southwest, on the West Virginia side of the river. Some good wells were recently brought in in that direction, especially on the Keener property. They showed little or no salt water, and flowed naturally. The oil found at 8 stersytlle, by the way, is struck in the Rig Injun sand, at a depth of from 1,400 to 1,600 leet.

With the exceptions just noted, every well in the field produces from 5 to 20 times as much salt water as it does oil. Frequently, n ter a well has been pumping sait water for weeks, it will commence to show con siderable oil and eventually turn into a fair pumper.

The present field is about four miles wide The present field is about four miles wide from east to west, and five miles from north-east to southwest on a 22 degree line. The capacity of the wells ranges from 30 to 400 barrels a day, and in the last eight months the field has produced almost 2,000,000 barrels of petroleum. There is yet within the limits of the defined territory plenty of suff which has not been drilled, and with a better price for oil the production would probably be increased quickly by the drill-ling of new wells.

The Indiana field seems to have been greatly overestimated according to the reports which are brought back by Pennsylvania operators who have visited it. The sand, they claim, is extremely spotted and treacher us and the size of the wells developed dues not pay in the long run. Most of the operating has been done around Parland, the county sent of Jay county, in the northeastern part of the State. Outside of Jay county very little is being done.

Kenturky has once every few months hasden claim for recognition from her oil trade, but as yet nothing has been developed which warrants the placing of any reliance on the State as a great producing region. There have been a number of wells drilled and numerous effects made to open the territors, but without results.

Average Price for 1892,

The average market price for crude oil will average about 56 cents. The following are the averages for the months of the year: January, 62%: February, 60%: March, 5736: April, 67%: May, 65%: June, 54%: July, 52%: Au ust, 55; September, 545g; October, 513g; November 52, and December about 52 cents. In 1887 the average price was 71%, in 1887 it ns 65%, in 1898 it went up to 87%, in 1889 ore was another jump to 94%, in 1890 it tropped to 85% and in 1891 it was down to 67

The production of the Pennsylvania, New The production of the Pennsylvania, New York and West Virdnia fields during the year has averaged 8,845 barrels a day. This average is greater than for any other year in the oil business, with the exception of 1891, when the daily average output was 94,889 harrels. In 1889, when Bradford was near ing the zenith of its glory, the production was only 71,107; in 1881 it was 74,984, and in e82, when the Cherry Grove gushers were tweloped, the average went to 81,303 barrel the next year it declined to 63,395. In 1888, Inllowing the shutdown movement, it was only 40,700, and in 1899, when Wildwood was at its best, the average was up to 78,588 harrels. In Janu 07, 1891, the daily average production was 94,419, and for the month of 10-cember it was 78,000, a decline of over 12,000 barrels a day.

Decline in Completed Wells.

There has been a remarkable falling off in the number of wells completed during the year. The number is less than it has ever een, with the exceptions of the years 1887 and 1888. The total for the year is 1,899, only phone one-half the number finished in 1891, and only one-third of the number completed in 1930. The only reason that can be given for this cessation of work is the extremely low price of crude.

There are now 200 wells drilling in the various fields, and the average at the close of each month during the year just closed was 213. This is only one-half the number eventured in 1831.

was 213. This is only averaged in 1891.
There was an increase in stocks during the past year from 16,590,000 barrels in January to 19,100,000 barrels in August, when they began to decline, and are now down to Delaware river below Philadelphia. This line was completed last October.

Then the Producers and Refiners Pipe Line Company was organized and a line was laid from MoDonald, north through the Butier county region to Oil City and Titusville, where most of the independent refinerles are located. This line has been completed and oil is now being pumped through it.

Some one next proposed a pipe line through the northern side of the Producers and Refiners line with the seaboard. This scheme was immediately adopted and money was subscribed to build such a line. Custimetors are working on it now, and the projectors claim that they will be able to pump oil by the 1st of April.

Big Sales During the Year. It would scarcely do to pass over some of the larger sales of oil property which oc-curred in 1892. The Millers Run Oil Com-pany started the selling by disposing of a pany started the selling by disposing of a big block of territory, on the Ohio side of the river in the Sistersville field, to the Henry Oil Company, of Chicago, for something like $115,000. It was considered at the time a good price for the property. Not long ago, after months of negotiating, Messrs. B. Forst and C. D. Greenies sold to the Tidal Oil Company, of New York, which was organized by C. W. Scoffeld, for rerly an upper oil country operator, a large block of developed territory in the McDonald field for about $532,000. It had produced over 1,000,000 barriels of oil and had seen its best days when the transfer was made.

year, and the most important developments have been in what is now the Sistersville field, located on the Ohio river, 40 miles below Wheeling, W. Va. Ohi is found on both the Ohio and West Virginia sides of the river. The field takes its name from what was the village of Sistersville, in Tyler county, W. out of weeks; and from a production of is this fact which leads the Pennsylvania or 400 barrels a day it went to over 15,000 producers to believe that better prices are in store for them, and that they will soon reap the benefits. Another bullish factor is the new pipe lines. They should create competition and thus bring to the producer better remuneration for his work.
